

“Together We’re Better” Diversity Celebration Toolkit

The Arc of Maryland, Inc., in partnership with the Maryland State Department of Education, Maryland Department of Disabilities, the Maryland Developmental Disabilities Council, and Maryland Coalition for Inclusive Education, is pleased to announce its “Together We’re Better” Inclusive Education Awareness Campaign.

The “Together We’re Better” Inclusive Education Awareness Campaign will kick-off October 1 in honor of Maryland’s Disability History and Awareness Month. The Arc of Maryland has compiled this DIVERSITY CELEBRATION TOOLKIT to assist teachers, counselors, volunteers and other staff in preparing lesson plans and activities for students (K-5) to celebrate the diverse abilities of all students.

The highlight of the “Together We’re Better” Inclusive Education Awareness Campaign is a Poster Contest for elementary classes. The Poster Contest and awareness activities enhance students’ awareness of inclusive practices while engaging in activities that create a sense of caring and community.

For more information on the “Together We’re Better” Inclusive Education Awareness Campaign and Elementary School Poster Contest please visit www.thearcmd.org or contact Dawn Koplos, Director of Education Policy and Children’s Issues, The Arc of Maryland at (410) 571-9320 or email dkoplos@thearcmd.org.

BACKGROUND

What are “Inclusive Schools?”

Inclusive Schools are characterized as those that:

- Make every student feel welcome and provide the supports they need to learn.
- Embrace the understanding that every student is unique, and therefore, learns differently.
- Understand that all children learn better if teaching is tailored to their abilities and interests.
- Collaborate with families.
- Hold high expectations for student success.

Schools that use inclusive education practices accept and embrace students of all abilities and disabilities as members of their age-appropriate general education classes. Students with disabilities in the school belong there because they live in the neighborhood jurisdiction; there is no group or regional “special” program based on a disability type or label. Special education services are delivered through a collaborative instructional model in which special educators and general educators plan to provide services within the general education curriculum. Students who have disabilities – no matter how significant – receive their special education services in general education settings; there is no group program that they must attend in order to receive instruction. Inclusive schools seek to find solutions when students are challenging; use collaborative problem-solving in team work; welcome students who traditionally have been sent to separate special programs; and work with families to develop truly individualized services for each student.

Improving Education: The Promise of Inclusive Schooling (see link to booklet below under RESOURCES) includes a laundry list of more than two dozen practical ways educators can make their classrooms more inclusive. Those inclusive practices, previously published in national reports, include:

- LESS whole-class, teacher-directed instruction
- LESS classroom time devoted to fill-in-the-blank worksheets
- LESS effort by teachers to thinly "cover" large amounts of material in every subject area
- LESS tracking or leveling of students into "ability groups"
- MORE active learning in the classroom
- MORE emphasis on higher-order thinking and learning of key concepts and principles
- MORE responsibility transferred to students for their work
- MORE attention to affective needs and the varying cognitive styles of individual students
- MORE delivery of special help to students in general education classrooms.
